Family Birthday Party Inspiration

I know we are living in an uncertain time right now and people are doing their best to keep everyone safe by staying at home and practicing social distancing. Our family cancelled our Spring Break trip to the Grand Canyon and have been trying to stay busy at home!

What if your child's birthday is coming up and as the responsible adult that you are – you had to cancel the big friend party you had planned. There are so many ways you can make your child feel special on their birthday at home with just immediate family!

Handprint Calendar Craft!

I was going to save this activity for my summer newsletter but decided with all the craziness going on now with the Coronavirus, that I would share and add a little fun for kiddos who are off of school due to the virus.

I did this project with my kiddos back when O was almost 3 and V was almost one. It's super cute with little hands but could work with all preschool/elementary age kids.

For each month of the calendar we created a scene with their little hands, fingers, thumbs and sometime feet! Read all the details on how to create each month HERE!

I have so much fun designing decorations for different party themes, but my favorite is designing for a specific child/person in mind! I absolutely love creating something unique for customers!

Have an idea in your head that you are having trouble finding in real life. Can't find a party invite you love? I can help!! As well as designing new parties for my kids, I have designed unique themed parties for lots of kids over the years.
